Introduction

Home For Good is an initiative to end veteran homelessness by the end of 2015, chronic homelessness by the end of 2016, and ultimately all homelessness in Los Angeles County. Launched in December 2010 by United Way of Greater Los Angeles and the LA Area Chamber of Commerce, it is a collective and countywide effort of over 200 cross-sector organizations.

Los Angeles has more people living unsheltered on the streets than anywhere in the nation, with over 39,500 individuals without a home every night enduring devastating challenges. This reality negatively impacts our communities, our businesses, and our society. Recognizing the significant work being done in Los Angeles to manage homelessness, we identified the need to create a bigger tent and a collective strategy to address all of the facets of a complex problem. In coming together as a community, we found that the barriers we were all experiencing were bigger than any of our individual agencies.

Home For Good is grounded in the deep belief that a Housing First approach is the key to ending homelessness—a focus on knowing every person on our streets by name, understanding their needs, and quickly linking them to the permanent housing and services they need to thrive. To scale this approach across the region, we identified four key drivers critical to our success:

- Efficient Service Delivery
- Sufficient Resources
- Excellence in Quality
- Public and Political Will

We have made great progress—together through the tremendous work of people across the region championing the effort to end homelessness, we have seen shifts in our system, new collaborations, and incredible progress on the ground.

Enclosed is a report on the progress of Home For Good including an update on our current trajectory and the final gaps to bring our homeless neighbors home for good. We are at a pivotal moment, with great progress and a solid foundation in place, now more than ever we all need to take another big step forward toward ending homelessness in Los Angeles. We can end homelessness in Los Angeles County, but it will take every single one of us playing a unique and critical role.

We see the consequences...

Economic imperative } homelessness costs us nearly $1 billion a year.
Moral imperative } people are dying on the streets.
Community imperative } we know we can do better for our communities.

LA County has more people living on the streets than anywhere else in the country.
And, it’s not just a Skid Row problem – over 90% of our homeless neighbors live outside of Skid Row.
"We have the solutions...

Housing First is successful 88% of the time (compared to under 50% in traditional homeless intervention)

and it's 43% cheaper than leaving someone on the streets

We're over 200 cross sector partners strong and creating change

"Here in LA, the United Way and Chamber of Commerce have brought public and private partners together for an incredible program called Home For Good."

“We know that government can’t do it alone. If we are going to make a difference on this issue, issues like employment and homelessness, we have got to get communities across the country engaged at every level. That means businesses, government, foundations, and nonprofits; it means our schools, our hospitals; it means neighbors from down the street...that’s exactly what you are doing in Los Angeles.”

Michelle Obama
First Lady of the United States of America
Putting the Pieces Together

Homelessness should not merely be managed; it should be ended, for good. Recognizing the barriers we were all facing were bigger than any of our individual agencies, we all came together to form Home For Good.
Since its launch, Home For Good partners have housed 19,026 individuals.

Together, we identified four core drivers to ending homelessness and launched signature initiatives for each.

- Driver I: Efficient Service Delivery
  Coordinated Entry System
- Driver II: Sufficient Resources
  Funders Collaborative
- Driver III: Excellence in Quality
  Standards of Excellence
- Driver IV: Public and Political Will
  Business Leaders Task Force and You

...and with this foundation in place and great urgency around our goals, we focus our collective momentum and the critical role that every single one of us play to end homelessness.
Efficient Service Delivery

It’s frustrating to have to wait for anything, but slow-moving services for someone experiencing homelessness can be a matter of life and death. Inefficient processes literally extend the length of someone’s homelessness.

Studies show that living on the streets can take up to 25 years off a person’s life. This also means fewer people have the opportunity to benefit from that particular support. Ensuring that our approach to housing as a network is efficient is essential to maximizing resources and impact.
The Coordinated Entry System stitches existing programs together into a no-wrong-door system, connecting homeless adults to the best resource for them.

- Ensuring every homeless individual is known by name
- Assisting based on their unique needs
- Matching based on the right housing fit

Without CES
- Dead ends, closed doors
- Endless intakes, applications, and waiting lists
- First come, first served
- Each organization doing it all

With CES
- Seamless Connections
- 1 survey that connects to real-time housing opportunities
- Best fit, housing match
- Each organization doing what they do best

Covers ALL 8 LA County regions engaging 200 community organizations

Coming together is a beginning…

Coordinated Entry System launched with a successful pilot in Skid Row. It helped double participation in outreach and navigation efforts, and created more seamless connections between agencies. At the 200-day celebration, staff from public and private partners reflected on the difference.

"After years of working on Skid Row, I finally feel like we are working together...It used to take me 2 years to house my most vulnerable clients. With CES, it took me 6 months." - Gina Jones (Los Angeles Christian Health Centers)

"True systems coordination is occurring for the most vulnerable." - Eunyoung Cho (Los Angeles Homeless Services Authority)

With the conclusion of the pilot and the beginning of countywide CES operations, the community continues to collaborate to increase the speed and efficiency with which we house our homeless neighbors.
Sufficient Resources

Supply and demand is a simple logic that applies to ending homelessness as it does to any other market need. There are now clear and proven solutions to ending homelessness – even for those who have been homeless for long periods of time with serious health conditions. Ending homelessness requires that we ensure that our supply of these resources lines up with what we know to be the demand for them. This also means that there need to be the systems and protocols in place to make sure that each resource is delivered to the right person.
Sufficient Resources
Funders Collaborative

The Home For Good Funders Collaborative is a unique partnership of public and private funders leveraging and aligning resources for greater impact than any one funder can make alone.

Collaboration in Action: 500 Housed

In 2012, the Housing Authority of the City of Los Angeles committed 500 housing vouchers, the Department of Health Service and Department of Mental Health, aligned services directly with those high acuity clients, and private funders committed to fund move-in costs and crisis intervention.

This transformative relationship coordinated through The Funders Collaborative, between public and private, city and county, revolutionizes the effectiveness and efficiency of the homeless service system in Los Angeles. These 500 high need clients would not have been housed without this strategic partnership through Home For Good.

Through this collaboration we can reduce public spending by 43% making limited funds go further.

2015 Update 12
Excellence in Quality

Not every service is created equal – the type and quality of services delivered greatly affects the outcome for each unique individual. After all, ending someone’s homelessness means very little if it’s done so haphazardly that the person becomes homeless again. Excellence in quality is a key standard that protects our homeless neighbors and the investment we make in their care.
The Standards of Excellence were co-created to focus our system on a clear set of goals and practices—for service providers and funders related to housing and services—that end homelessness.

Co-created by Nonprofits and Funders including CSH, Shelter Partnership, the Center for Urban Community Services, Housing Innovations, and direct service providers.

Capacity building trainings based on the standards supported 1,400 participants in over 40 trainings in 2013-2014. Held throughout the county, providers of all kinds are coming together to support and learn from each other.

Dave’s Story

When the CES outreach team from southeast Los Angeles began working with Dave, a veteran, he had been homeless for more than 20 years. Progress toward housing him had been slow, until staff began working with Coordinated Entry System partner, Mental Health America. Dave was assessed using the VI-SPDAT and received an acuity score of 17 identifying him as extremely vulnerable. The fact that the VI-SPDAT is a universal assessment tool now used across the region allowed the case management staff from various organizations working with Dave to have a common starting point to provide assistance and to target resources and services more effectively than if both used different approaches.

On December 28, 2014 Dave was placed in permanent supportive housing for the first time in two decades. He is adjusting well to his new home and has visits weekly from assigned outreach and service staff. Both are working together helping Dave address his mental and primary health concerns while building a strong relationship with him as he steadily improves the quality of his life and his health. Dave says he received the “best Christmas present: a place to call home.”
Public and Political Will

In democracies, we expect each citizen to advocate for what is most important to them. But that puts our homeless neighbors at a distinct disadvantage. Luckily, democracy also allows us to stand in and stand up for each other. Like it or not, homelessness is something that affects us all as Angelenos. And bringing it to an end should not be the accomplishment of a small group of heroes, but a community of advocates. Ending homelessness is possible and actually cheaper than doing nothing - that’s good news that deserves to be shared with neighbors and policy makers. While there are many ways to help, something we can all do is show up and speak up.
Achieving these ambitious goals takes all of us. We each play a unique and critical role in ending homelessness and these are just some of the ways in which together our neighborhoods are engaging in change.

Business Leaders Task Force
In 2009, The LA Area Chamber of Commerce and United Way brought together a powerful group of business leaders committed to ending homelessness. They invested their resources and expertise to help craft and launch Home For Good, partnering with every sector in the region. The Task Force is deeply committed to reaching our goal in building the political will and resources needed to end homelessness.

Advocacy
We are stronger when we stand together.

In 2013 we came together to defeat the Community Care Facilities Ordinance, with hundreds of community members and more than 160 organizations, standing up for fair, shared housing.

In 2014, we worked to pass AB 639, which later went to the California voters as Prop 41. This proposition restructured $600 million in unspent funds to create affordable and supportive housing for veterans.

In 2014, we supported AB 1733, which aligns with our work around Coordinated Entry System, alleviating the cost burden associated with obtaining vital records and state identification records needed to secure housing.

HomeWalk
Over the past 8 years Homewalk mobilized almost 60,000 community members raised over $5.5 million to help move our homeless neighbors into permanent supportive housing.
